FOREWORD

Although Cincinnati was of the utmost importance in the westward migration after the Revolutionary War no effort has been made to publish marriage records preserved here in the Probate Court. In many other communities such vital statistics have been made available to the genealogist and historian and more are being published. Of course, Hamilton County records have been subjected to two fires of which the one set by rioters in March 1884, was the more destructive. Few of the early marriage records are to be found but many have been restored from other sources.

Benjamin Stites, of New Jersey, made the first permanent settlement in November 1788, on the Ohio river at the mouth of the Little Miami, calling his place "Columbia". It is now part of Cincinnati. A few weeks later, in December 1788, the site of Cincinnati was settled by a group under leadership of Robert Patterson, John Filson and Mathias Denman. Here Fort Washington, the outpost against the Indians, was established in 1789.

When the region was organized as the Northwest Territory provision was made for marriage licenses to be issued and the right to perform the marriage rite was granted to ministers and justices of the peace. Unfortunately, these officials did not always make a return of their records to the court house.

It has been felt for some time that the marriage records now in the Probate Court of Hamilton County, Ohio, should be made available, and, with the consent of Judge Chase M. Davies, we have set ourselves this task. Mrs. Natalie Thornburgh, a deputy in this court, retired recently and I am very happy to have her expert assistance. At the same time we are publishing the first 98 wills recorded for Hamilton County, giving all names mentioned in each will and the relationship when indicated.

The names of contracting parties, men and women, are given in alphabetical order, as are the makers of the wills, hence no index is needed. This is a limited edition.
